

Dr. Chowhan has had a lifelong passion for horse racing and thoroughbred breeding and was able to start racing and breeding his own horses in the late 1990s. He currently manages his farm, Fleur de Lis Stables, located in Louisville, Kentucky. Some of his bred/raced stakes winners include Awesome Humor, Runway Model, America's Tale, Brooklynsway, and Seaneen Girl.

Dr. Chowhan is also a medical oncologist and hematologist working in Southern Indiana for over 25 years. His name precedes him for his excellent and compassionate care. He maintains board certifications in hematology, oncology, and internal medicine and has been certified in acupuncture. He has been involved in clinical trials throughout his years in practice bringing cutting edge treatment options to oncology and hematology patients. He was recognized as the Floyd Memorial Foundation Doctor of the Year 4 times between 2012 and 2019. He actively participates in multiple committees and boards including the University of Louisville President's Council, Board of Trustees Association of Physicians of Pakistani Descent of Kentucky and Indiana, Doctors for Healthy Communities, Muslim Americans for Compassion and the Executive Board of Indiana State Department of Health. He has mentored multiple medical students. His compassion expands beyond his professional life and he continues to be active in multiple local, national, and international charities.
